ONE presents Pedaling in Sauerkraut, a new painting by New York-based artist Ryan McGinness.

A translation of a French idiom that means “spinning one’s wheels,” this triptych is from McGinness’ Mindscapes series. These compositions employ the artist’s iconography and an energetic use of color in a dense landscape of overlapping motifs. There are appearances that range from the art history canon, including flattened renderings of iconic paintings by Jan van Eyck, Salvador Dali, and Frank Stella, to McGinness’ own signature symbology, namely his “Signals” and “Black Holes,” all fastened together with decorative flourishes and metal leafing throughout.

Pedaling in Sauerkraut invites the viewer into multiverses created through McGinness’ visual lexicon, allowing them to be enveloped in a world of details when seen up close while maintaining a cohesive viewing experience from a distance.

Pedaling in Sauerkraut will also be accompanied by a signed limited edition artist’s book titled “Sauerkraut” by McGinness, which will include only black-and-white details of the painting on view at ONE. Copies will be available for purchase at the gallery and online.

Hours: ONE is presently open by appointment only, Tuesday-Sunday 11AM-5PM.
